OPENING DATE:

03 | 2013

DESCRIPTION:

Flip open the brass shutters and let light flood into your room, right above Sofia's yellow paved main boulevard Tzar Osvoboditel. Your bed faces a vertical wall of glass, with views stretching well beyond the neighboring National Assembly and St Alexander Nevski Cathedral. This is Sense Sofia, the first upscale design hotel in Bulgaria's capital. Some of city's most significant architecture can be found nearby, but rather than simply making the building fit in with its neighbors, owner George Chojev and his business partners deliberately challenged the status quo. With the help of Lazzarini Pickering Architetti, he created a building that's sensitive to its surroundings, but whose innovative glass façade literally reflects Sofia's past, present and future. Chojev also called upon designers at Architectural Group Tzonkov, who created sophisticated spaces that are loved by locals and guests. Stay in one of the 71 rooms and suites, eat on the terrace of the Mediterranean fusion restaurant, relax in the lobby lounge, sip champagne in the panoramic rooftop bar, or swim in the health center's 14m-long stainless steel swimming pool, and you'll discover that Sense Sofia is a new classic that stands out from the crowd. By meeting the changing needs of its guests, and acting as an architectural landmark in its own right, the hotel is sure to stand the test of time. Explore the Bulgarian capital's past, present and future at Sense Sofia, the city's first upscale design hotel.
