Ownership: Hotel du Petit Moulin is privately owned by the Chevalier Family – who also own Pavillon de la Reine, Places des Vosges and Pavillon des Lettres

General Manager: Lionel Karsenty

Location: On the corner of the rue du Poitou in the heart of the Marais, the oldest quartier in Paris, dating back to the 17th century. The area is lively and trendy, and full of wonderful boutiques, galleries, fascinating museums, atmospheric cafes and restaurants

Overview: Hotel du Petit Moulin is an authentic, secret space, full of history. The hotel's labyrinthine layout, and theatrical design means that it is full of surprises around every corner

Access: A 45 minute drive from Roissy Charles de Gaulle International Airport and a short walk from Saint-Sébastien-Froissart or Filles du Calvaire Metro stations. 20 minutes from the Gare du Nord for Eurostar.

History: Set in a 17th Century building, originally home to Paris' first bakery. This is where Victor Hugo would come to buy his baguette – and the 1900 shop frontage is listed as part of French heritage by Historic Monuments. The Rue du Poitou dates to 1626, and owes its name to an unrealised project from Henry IV – to build a square called Place de France, with adjoining streets named after French provinces.

Interiors: Historic elements of the building have been restored, retaining the quirky perspectives and the labyrinthine manner of the layout. In 2004, Christian Lacroix transformed the building into a true couture hotel – modern and bold, yet harmonious and stylish, with each tiny detail corresponding exactly to the overall atmosphere of the space.

Accommodation: There are 16 individually designed rooms and 1 junior suite, each telling a different story of the Marais – a story to be finished by the guest. Some are bright and daring, others antiquated and more rustic - all are theatrical and playful - and recognisably the work of Lacroix.
