

URBAN DIVERSIFICATION

space between people and architecture

In the masterplan is easy to observe the balanced proportion between green and built.

In the residential area the privat green and the public green are organized in order that the houses are independent in spite of very close and the people can live in connection with nature.

In the central area of the project, were is the main building, green areas introduce to it and is in balance with the pavement and the accesses.

in the waterfront area the presence of the green is in union with the ways and the function, but all is inside within the same system.
