Everyone knows the magic and incomparable flair exuded by original parquet flooring. Be it in castles, palaces, villas or upmarket town houses – a parquet floor gives any residential or commercial space a special, exclusive look: it gets a life of its own, its own « soul ».

It is precisely this that makes authentic floors so very popular with interior decorators and designers. This makes original and historic flooring both rare and hard to come by. They are also traded as high-quality antiques. For me, this antique flooring is therefore also furniture on which we walk and it is in this way that these charismatic geometric parquet floors are also restored and treated. My passion and fascination for soulful old flooring dates back to my work as a furniture restorer in the Wuerttemberg State Museum in Stuttgart and as an active consultant and advisor in the European preservationist market. Today, with my company ANTIQUE PARQUET, I focus exclusively on rescuing, collecting and expertly restoring historic parquet-, plank- and geometric parquet flooring, which I supply to customers around the world as well as expertly install on request. After all, you have to be very careful when dealing with these old and preserved surfaces to ensure you give the parquet flooring just the right look wherever it is installed.
