

The Landscape

Pinocchio Children's Library

The great wall was not the result of an architectural program, but a result of a social program. The wall was built to protect the children from the street and to create a safe space for them to play and learn. The wall was built by the children themselves, and it has become a symbol of their community and their resilience.

The new building is a result of a social program. It was built to provide a safe space for children to play and learn. The building was designed by a team of architects and was built by the children themselves. The building is a symbol of their community and their resilience.
