

MASSIMILIANO LOCATELLI | CLS ARCHITETTI

Massimiliano Locatelli has studied architecture at the Politecnico in Milan and took his PhD at Columbia University in New York with the tutorship of Kenneth Frampton. He set up the architecture premise CLS Architetti in 1993, in Milan, with his partners Giovanna Cornelio, Annamaria Scevola and with Davide Agrati.

Massimiliano Locatelli has developed design projects in different contexts: private homes, showrooms, shops, exhibitions, and the architectural design of new buildings. He also designs furniture, including purpose-designed furniture for individual projects and solutions for companies.

He has won a number of competitions, including a tender bid competition held by the Municipality of Milan for the restoration and functional redevelopment of the complex of historic buildings in Piazza XXV Aprile, in Milan. He also took part in the Metamorph exhibition at the 9th Venice Biennale, in the section entitled 'Notizie dall'interno' ('News from Inside'), and was also invited to take part in the exhibition entitled 'Il paesaggio mobile del nuovo design italiano' ('The Changing Landscape of New Italian Design') at the Milan Triennale Design Museum. In December 2016 he was the ambassador for the House of Today design exhibition in Beirut. His design work for clients in fashion is organised as coordinated image management: from offices to showrooms, and from shops to fashion shows.

His projects for new architectural designs include the construction of the Lia Rumma art gallery in Milan, a residential building and a kindergarten in Milan, and the manufacturing unit for the Onward Luxury Group, which he presented in the Italian Pavilion at the 13th Venice Biennale. He is working on the reconversion of a textile factory in Piedmont and also designed the Nilfar depot space in Milano.

Another significant part of his work consists of designing private homes that involve many different types of interior architecture - large villas, townhouses, hotels particuliers, apartments, and historic homes, combining renovation, restoration and new construction, including a two-level penthouse in Vietnam, a town house in New York, an hotel particulier in Paris, and a residential building in Mumbai.

In the last few years he has also developed projects for restaurants and hotels at Villa Reale in Monza (Milan), in Las Vegas for chef Wolfgang Puck and of a hotel de charme in Asia.

Massimiliano Locatelli with CLS Architetti created Converso, an art exhibition project devoted to the arts of our time, which was hosted at CLS Architetti own office in the former church of S. Paolo Converso.

As a designer, since 2012 he has presented his evolving vision for furniture and objects and in 2015 he launched a new tableware project called Untitled Homeware.

This was a way to connect his inspiration between architecture and design.
