SÓHA

SÓHA is a conceptual brand of interior items and kitchen utensils with the powerful esthetics of the Russian North created by the artist Denis Milovanov and his producer Alice Bourmistrova.

Simple in form, minimalistic in style and monochromic in colors, SÓHA Concept pieces refer you to the traditions of the Russian wooden architecture and the life of the northern peoples, creating new imagery in the modern interior.

The idea of the SÓHA Concept brand is expressed in three object lines.

Kitchen utensils line includes exclusive items made of wood, trays and cutting boards for restaurants and homes. December 2015 marked the launch of the most popular cutting boards collection - SIVER by SÓHA.

The second line encompasses the decor and interior design objects: wall panels, bowls, decorative boards and furniture that could create a special atmosphere and style in any space. These objects give a simultaneous feeling of everyday practicality and the singularity of the author's work.

Art objects of minor forms, single décor and interior items make the third SÓHA Concept line that can only be found in galleries and concept showrooms.

INSPIRATION AND TECHNOLOGY

SÓHA Concept objects are created based on the authentic craft technology and avangard art techniques.

Following the ancient Russian traditions, the oak and hazelnut wood is boiled in oil. It expels moisture from the wood and makes it stronger and more durable by impregnating it. Reacting with tanning substances under high temperature, oil gives the objects expressive and natural colors, from light brown to charcoal-black.

Decorative patterns and the objects themselves are masterfully made solely with the chain saw.

Inspiration to create all these comes from the Russian North esthetics with its severe nature, log huts black from time and climate and scant patterns.
